

politics. In fact, when I was deciding to run for Congress, I went and sat down and talked with Terry Sanford. His words of encouragement helped me make up my mind, and they continue to inspire me and many others today.

Last year, prior to his passing, I began searching for a way to honor Senator Sanford who has meant so much to me, my family, and so many North Carolinians and Americans. With the help of my colleagues here in Congress, we came up with the idea of naming the Federal building in downtown Raleigh, a stone's throw away from the governor's mansion where Terry Sanford may have made many of his most important contributions to a generation of North Carolinians and a generation of teachers and students who will continue to make a contribution for years and years to come. Naming this building in his honor will allow his influence to be felt by a whole new generation of leaders.

Terry Sanford was more than a great and admired politician. He was one of the most accomplished Americans of our time. His North Carolina values and visionary leadership brought us through some of the most difficult challenges that beset our generation and set us forward in North Carolina on a path of tremendous progress that we enjoy today economically. This gesture is the least we should do for a man who allowed us to view the world from his broad shoulders.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. WISE).

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) for yielding me this time, and I thank the gentleman from North Carolina (Chairman COBLE) for bringing this bill to the floor and making it possible for us to be here.

I want to rise in a little different capacity. Each one of us has one or two people that played major roles in our life that we can point to as a mentor in a formative stage in our life and development. In my life, I was fortunate enough to have Terry Sanford as one of those people.

As a student at Duke University when Mr. Sanford became the President of Duke, and then having had the privilege of working with him not only as a student but then later in various political undertakings, I had the unique experience of getting to know him and to be affected by him. But my experience is no more unique than that of hundreds, perhaps thousands, of young people and that alone is a testament to why this building is aptly named for Terry Sanford.

Terry Sanford was a progressive governor from 1960 to 1964 in a time when integration and the battle for civil rights was sweeping this Nation. And as some southern governors were standing in schoolhouse doors, Terry Sanford was opening schoolhouse doors. While North Carolina was in many ways the birthplace of the civil rights movement with the Greensboro sit-ins, at the same time it was not gripped by many of the same problems that affected others, and that is because of the leadership of Terry Sanford.

As a college president, this was a college president who involved young people at every level, who challenged us by saying, "You can be involved in whatever level you can rise to." During the late 1960s and early 1970s, there could be no more important leadership coming than that.

He one time said, as some of us were sitting around criticizing someone one time, and he looked at us and he said, "No one is going to be able to say that I did not give everybody a chance." That was what Terry Sanford was about: giving an opportunity.

He was a dark horse presidential candidate and in 1972, we did not go on to the White House. But at the same time, he once again gave hundreds of young people, college students and those just out of college, he gave us a chance to express ourselves in times that were very frustrating and to feel that we were making some difference in what was happening on the national scene.

Finally, of course, as a United States Senator, Terry Sanford provided the leadership that he had always provided reaching out to those of all persuasions, bringing them in.

It is interesting today as we wrestle with concerns about education to meet the challenges of education, we are wrestling with many of the same concerns and areas that Terry Sanford worked on as Governor of North Carolina.

He understood well the role of the public university in his love of the University of North Carolina. At the same time, he guided a private university, Duke University, to all new levels of national prominence.

So as a Governor, as a college president, as a presidential candidate, as a United States Senator, as a father, as a war veteran, as an FBI agent, as a citizen, Terry Sanford was an example to us all. The legacy to Terry Sanford is of course that, across this country, indeed I warrant across this world, there are thousands of young people, young then, much older now, there are thousands of people that directly felt his impact and feel it today and carry that on through their lives.

That is why I thank the majority and the minority for bringing this bill to the floor, so that we can properly honor someone who had such an incredible impact on so many people.

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, the first political figure with whom I seriously identified was Terry Sanford. Indeed, he was a mentor and an inspiration to many of my generation who came of age politically during his governorship in the early 1960s. He taught us what democratic politics at its best could be. He was a model of energetic and innovative leadership, full of ideas, refusing to be bound by the shackles of the past, possessing a vision of future possibility that inspired and empowered others.

This Sunday marks the one-year anniversary of Terry Sanford's death. Looking around the Triangle region that I represent and all of North Carolina, we must remember that our success story was made possible, in large part, by the vision of Terry Sanford. Our quality of life and our economic success is the legacy of his commitment to public education, to the movement for racial justice, to the development of our community college system, and to the growth of Research Triangle Park. Like Terry Sanford, our area is dynamic, vibrant, and full of hope.

When we look back on the broad sweep of Terry Sanford's life—as an FBI agent, a World War II paratrooper, a state legislator, lawyer, author, university president, governor, and senator—we see a life committed to the greatest movements and deeply involved in the greatest accomplishments in this American century.

I am proud to join the entire North Carolina delegation in sponsoring this bill, and I urge all my colleagues to support this legislation to name the federal building in Raleigh for Terry Sanford, an extraordinary citizen, visionary leader, and son of North Carolina.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. STEARNS). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill H.R. 911, as amended.

The question was taken.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H. Con. Res 48, H. Con. Res. 49, and H.R. 911, as amended.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12 of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until approximately 5:30 p.m. today.

Accordingly (at 3 o'clock and 32 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess until approximately 5:30 p.m.
